

First there was Clear Channel. Now there is Sinclair Broadcasting.

I do not understand how the FCC fails to react to such giants using the public airways for personal political benefit.

If we still own the airways as a nation, then the FCC has a responsibility to prevent the misuse of local stations they have purchased.

I do not understand how a single company has been able to buy over 60 stations. I understand even less their arrogance in wanting to use their stations to further their political position.
